System Downtime

Posted by crystalcross - 08 May 2011 19:19

I would like to offer our apologies. As many of you may have noticed the Ghosts & Haunts site was unavailable today from 3:30pm until roughly 4pm. We've corrected the issue and all systems are back in perfect operation.

The issue was caused by some database corruption in the Mobile version of the site. This corruption started effecting the standard version of the site and required a rebuild of the components involved with that portion of the site and also a restart.

Please accept our apologies for any issues this may have caused. There was no loss of data associated with this issue, so all your post should still be in tact.

==========