On an investigation we had information that a prior visitor who clamied to be psychic went into one of the rooms and felt that one of the walls to the room had been added after it was originallt built, that's there's been a different entrance... one of our investigators asked " Was there a different entrance to this room before? " Right after that I believe we got an answer. I think I here " 2... right there " but there's been some question over what the first part of it said..
