double evp from Howle Hill, Wales, UK

Posted by channelpirate - 22 Oct 2011 12:20

This was recorded at the above location in 2009. There were only two of us present when recorded, the rest being in another part of the house. First evp comes after we are asked to come out of the attic - we believe it is 'no'. I am then walking down the stairs wth Stew and am describing what I saw and a 'yes' cuts across me. Recording was digital on an Olympus 6300 and neither of us heard the evp's at the time.

==========

Re: double evp from Howle Hill, Wales, UK

Posted by crystalcross - 22 Oct 2011 14:01

Great find, and welcome aboard. Always love to see what our brothers in the UK find.

By the way, I made some changes so the system now accepts WMA files. And I took the liberty to attach your file so that it plays correctly. Hope you don't mind.

I can hear the "No" crystal clear, the "Yes" is not quite as easily spotted.

==========

Re: double evp from Howle Hill, Wales, UK

Posted by channelpirate - 23 Oct 2011 09:38

No, that's fine. What format is best for you? I use Audacity to cut out segments of audio but this will not output directly as MP3 although I can change to this if it's better for you - rob

==========

Re: double evp from Howle Hill, Wales, UK

Posted by crystalcross - 23 Oct 2011 11:03

WMA is fine now. I've since changed the forums to be able to accept audio uploads in that format. So you can now attach them directly to a forum post, and then insert them where you want in the message.

As for Audacity, yes great program. I use it myself exclusively. It can do MP3's however, you simply have to install the LAME-MP3 libraries available on the Audacity download site.

==========