Mr. Mackey is VERY upset over this. We need to do what we can to help him.

Very true! I think this is an excellent example of a time when the entire Paranormal Community needs to unite together. We're millions strong, if we just all come together.

What a great idea! I'm hoping you get some great response to this! I know we have a great community of sensitives on this site. Not sure how many of our sensitive members extend into the Psychic realm, but I'm sure there will be some.

But I'm hoping one way or the other the sign is returned. It has no real monetary value since its a beat up old hand-written sign. But it does have historical value, especially in our community.

Its just so sad that stealing pissants ruin a good thing, the sign had history and hopefully it has powers that curse the thieves and make there life a living hell, just like the well at Mackeys. Well anyway theres been no info on the stolen sign after 5 weeks, they probably have it in there room using it like a poster, what a bunch of idiots, what goes around comes around and your dealing with stuff you have no idea what they can do to you so if your reading this I suggest you return the sign, stealing from the devils lair could possibly curse you and your family from here to eternity so bring it back or suffer unheard of torture and you will never amount to anything unless you think death row is cool
