Oaklawn Cemetery-2/Tampa, Florida

Posted by Steve - 19 Mar 2011 17:08

---

This is another photo of Oaklawn Cemetery in Tampa, Florida. The only thing I didn't like about this photo was the tree coming out from behind the Lesley tombstone; but I had to sacrifice this time as the large tombstone added to the image by overlooking the smaller family tombstones.

For those of you who visit this place, you will not be disappointed. Make sure to be there early as it closes at 6 PM.

==========

Re: Oaklawn Cemetery-2/Tampa, Florida

Posted by crystalcross - 19 Mar 2011 23:42

---

This one is very interesting.  The contrast is brought out to such an extent that it almost looks like the image has an embossed effect.  Do they allow private tours after hours, of course performed in a respectful manner.

==========

Re: Oaklawn Cemetery-2/Tampa, Florida

Posted by crystalcross - 19 Mar 2011 23:43

---

I meant to ask, when you enter locations that you know are haunted.  Please also go into our "Haunts" directory and create a listing, that way it will be available from cell phones.

==========

Re: Oaklawn Cemetery-2/Tampa, Florida

Posted by Steve - 19 Mar 2011 23:52

---

crystalcross wrote:

> The contrast is brought out to such an extent that it almost looks like the image has an embossed effect.  Do they allow private tours after hours, of course performed in a respectful manner.

I use the Nik Silver Efex Pro software and apply what is called the "High Structure" function. That's how I got that effect. You can download this software for free for 15 days to try it out. It is a 3rd party software that can be used in Photoshop and Photoshop Elements.

As far as I know, they don't allow any private tours. I can google ghost hunts in Oaklawn Cemetery and see what I find.

==========

Re: Oaklawn Cemetery-2/Tampa, Florida

Posted by Steve - 20 Mar 2011 00:17

_____

crystalcross wrote:

I meant to ask, when you enter locations that you know are haunted.  Please also go into our "Haunts" directory and create a listing, that way it will be available from cell phones.

Done.

==========