Interesting thoughts, Keith. Never really thought about the structure of the eye being different in the corners and how that would effect vision and seeing through the veil.

In some of my own personal experiences, I to, have noticed that a Spirit will sometimes want to get my attention, by appearing off to the side of me. In other incidents, I have had some Spirits get my attention, by appearing either directly in front of me, or directly behind me.

Each Spirit is " Different ". Whatever " personality " they had while they were " here " in this life, they also have that same personality on the Other Side.

Also within my line of work, I have also came in contact, many times, w/ Spirits who tend to come across as to being somewhat on the " Shy - Side ". Some Spirits will come across as to being extremely playful, as well as to some of them, coming across extremely shy.

I have also come across in some case's, where the Spirits have been nothing but pure evil. I haven't came across those type's of case's very often, but, they do very much exist.

Keith, sounds like an experiment. A pair of cheap goggles from home depot and some black tape to block off everything but peripheral vision.
