Man in the woods
Posted by Lucas - 27 May 2012 12:41

Discuss photo: Man in the woods

The photo (Photo ID: 1209) does not exist

==========

Re: Man in the woods
Posted by Moonie - 27 May 2012 16:21

This photo was taken in the woods, just outside the fence to Bachelors Grove Cemetery in Midlothian , Illinois. It is said that a black man had been buried in this area and not with the other residents in the cemetery. Other reports say the man was hung from a tree and then buried in this area. We were investigating this area when this photograph was taken.

There appears to be a man walking between the trees towards the cemetery. To me it looks like he is wearing a hat similar to one a farmer or hunter may wear. I can make out his shoulder and arm. He appears to be wearing either a red shirt or coat, possible red and black plaid.

Others who have view the photo say they see him carrying a gun, however I do not see it. Maybe you will.

There are also a story about a caretaker for the cemetery that carried a gun, killed his family and shot himself. Basically its never been verified..so its local folklore as far as I'm concerned.

==========

Re: Man in the woods
Posted by Lucas - 27 May 2012 19:36

---

wait a sec... i didn't publish this... sorry to original picture owner... I don't know how did this happen

==========

Re: Man in the woods
Posted by BHPI Josh - 28 May 2012 01:25

I honestly see this being a case of visual pareidolia. I don't see anything besides the trees.

==========

Re: Man in the woods
Posted by Moonie - 28 May 2012 03:16

Still only see trees?

==========

Re: Man in the woods
Posted by BHPI Josh - 30 May 2012 18:25

Yes. This is pareidolia. I see the shape you are referring to, but I don't believe it to be paranormal at all.

==========

Re: Man in the woods
Posted by iburyem - 30 May 2012 20:19

I agree with Josh, sorry

==========