Kitty

Archer woods in Willow Springs Illinois. The area was documented as a wagon train path for settlers during the early settlement days. Ten miles away was an outpost for the wagon route.
