Hey Folks:

I haven't had a chance to post anything in awhile, so I thought I would post this photo which was taken in a Greek cemetery in Tarpon Springs, Florida. This photo was from our 2nd trip and it was very hot out; which made all of the cold spots very interesting. At one point, many cold spots were felt around us when we were at our car.

This area was interesting in that the two graves in front of the tree are of two small children. The grave behind the tree is also believed to be that of a small child.

Seems as if the tree is well fed on the energy... three kids... very high spirits out there... plus a cemetary and greek even. Weird enough I don't get anything bad out of it, and I'm kind of knocked off by the tree itself.

As always, such a powerful image.  You have such an eye for imagery.  Reminds me of Yggdrasil...

Thanks CC, but what is Yggdrasil???

I took your advice and started shooting B & W film again a few weeks ago. This photo was taken with B & W film.

I'll also send you a photo of the Georgia Guidestones from last week. Ever heard of them?

Thanks again.

Yggdrasil same as Sephiroth in a way, tree of life the connector of the worlds, divine and mid earth, profane/hel (hell) something like a doorway I'd say. Now what I feel is weird, I usually don't like the idea something growing as a parasite on something but this tree seems to just used what was near now nothing really as serious as if it was corrupted or tainted, it is strong, and full of primitive natural energy. Ok great I scare myself,. thought I saw someone in the reflection of my monitor. Ok so, Tree is strong, means something is keeping it in good shape. Sorry I zoned out, I'm so tired, haven't slept and this is why I get spooked out. Eh someone help me raise my defense? not feeling good at own house. Ok so the tree itself - not a problem, the problem is you don't leave leaking fuel tank anywhere right? I suggest do something about souls/orbs/graves.

In Florida, this tree is called a live oak; they grow this way and make for a dramatic images. Let me check and I'll get back with you on the leaking fuel tank. Lol.

Regarding souls/orbs/graves, I do shoot a lot of graves when time permits. I don't do orbs because, for the most part, orbs are not spiritual and they are the result of the flash lighting up the dust in the air. Over 90% of orb shots are nothing more than a digital photo of dust/debris in the air due to the location of the flash on the point and shoot digital camera. I've had a couple of "rare" shots with a point and shoot digital where the orbs were abnormal. Orbs will most likely not be captured if using a real camera [DSLR] and the flash placed in the off camera position.

Hope you're feeling better; it sucks to not be able to sleep.

The Tree looks like a Spider... Arachnid... Arachne... Moira... Three ... Three Moira's the kids...cut down voilent blood gush, guts intrails fear, gruesom death, killer on the lose. Not  the time for many. I am content nothing wrong with it. Well the killer obviously wasn't caught the kids were suppose to lead a long happy life but... betrayal at Krondor... forget it, it is a game title... hmmm but the plot... might give some feedback.

If you live in the Florida area, I highly recommend going to this cemetery [Cycadia]; it's a very peaceful place and the spirits there seem very content. I do not know if they visit there or have not crossed over because they do like it there.

I live on a whole different continent. Also if anyone felt weird reading my comments, think how do I feel when I channel, its not always sugar sweet, I seem crazy? think how much pain some entities cause me. Not a pretty site.

And yeah if to Florida I would, but I got other problems right now, still thanks for the advice.

Awsome pic as usual Steve you do have a great eye for photography. This picture kind of makes me feel like the deaths of these children were strange or uncommon. Form the view of the tree it looks to be growing very strangely. This is my view of this pic sure there are many but great photo and thanks for sharing.
