can someone give me their opinion on these orbs?

Posted by poptart - 09 Dec 2011 04:55

Hello! I just found this website and am excited to have a community to talk shop with! That being said, i recently traveled from minneapolis, USA to Edinburgh, Scotland for a little solo ghost hunting. While in the infamous Greyfriars Kirk one night i was taking flash digital photos and i would like your opinions on one in particular. This photo shows 3 very clear "orbs" Now im not sure how much i really believe in orbs, i think theres a lot of room for error there. Could anyone offer an opinion on this photograph?

Much appreciated,

poptart

==========

Re: can someone give me their opinion on these orbs?

Posted by MinnDak Paranormal - 09 Dec 2011 05:02

The best way to handle an orb. Could you see it with the naked eye or was it found after the photo was reviewed? If you could see them without the camera, then you have the real thing, otherwise, I would put it as dust, bugs, or something else reflecting back into your lens from your flash.

==========

Re: can someone give me their opinion on these orbs?

Posted by BHPI Josh - 09 Dec 2011 06:38

I would say dust or moisture particles in the air on these.

==========

Re: can someone give me their opinion on these orbs?

Posted by Steven Matrix - 10 Dec 2011 00:43

I agree with the gentlemen above. Orbs are almost never anything. I don't know who started the whole "orb" sensation. But they didn't know much about photography.

That was a great idea Poptart to ask about orbs. The content in your photo is very good. I'd like to see that photo in the daytime without flash. You may be surprised by what you get. Spirits don't need flash to show up in a photo.

==========