At first glance there really isn't much to this picture.

But, when I take it and increase the brightness, and bring up the contrast it turns the night into day.

When that happens you can see the detail in the dark. Which really makes the red spot stand out.

See this image, its the same photo with the brightness changed and zoomed in.

Then if I take that image and zoom in on the red spot, this is what I get...

I have to say, this is probably the best ORB and perhaps most unexplained one I've ever seen.

Its red, its not near anything. Its free floating. And it has plenty of detail around it. Its dark enough to where its not a simple light in the distance.

This is one of the few orbs which I would say is a real possibility of being of paranormal origin.

And I'm normally not easily swayed by orbs.

After looking at it over and over again, I'm starting to wonder if perhaps its one of those red drinking cups stuck in the chain-link fence. Is that possible? Was there a cup in the fence right there?
