I hate to spoil it for Josh, but BHPI might have another investigation this coming Friday. We have been contacted by a person who claims items being picked up and moved around including a coffee table that was lifted up and turned over slamming to the floor! The client has left the home because of the activity.

We will update everyone when we have more info. This sounds like a very interesting investigation and we are needless to say chomping at the bit to get in there to see what happens.
