Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by marchhier - 29 Mar 2011 01:27

_____

I would love to meet some of the other sensitives on this site. I know you are out there..lol. Let's meet and chat.

Laurie

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by Kimber Chase - 28 Nov 2011 05:46

_____

Just out of couriousity do you think a professional medium is more capable of helping someone then a psychic who doesn't use their gifts for fee? Or just more available?

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by lilbit0jd - 28 Nov 2011 05:50

_____

Kimber, it depends. If I am sick and need a doctor I want the most skilled professional, who specializes in that field. If I am seeking out a medium and willing to pay them it is because I respect them and their work enough to do so.

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by Kimber Chase - 28 Nov 2011 05:50

_____

Exactly why I don't work psych.....except when they come thru and are placed on 72 hour holds and we ship them to ya ;o) My last psych patient tried to pull his face off with his bare hands..... really? shiver.

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by Kimber Chase - 28 Nov 2011 05:54

_____

Lil..I see ur logic but it's interesting that there is a stigma that a psychic medium is better if they're public figures... but I sse ur logic there ;o) Guess I never really thought about it since I don't make a living doing it but I'd bet good odds there are many here and about who are as good if not more gifted then a professionally paid psychic.....including myself ;o) AND.....I'm modest in addition to being sensitive too haha ;o)

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by Karmastrophic - 28 Nov 2011 05:56

_____

Personally, I don't think one would be better than the other.

In my case, ignoring the fact I don't feel experienced enough to justify asking for payment, I just don't feel that my gifts are truly MINE. I feel like I should be using them to help others because they are given to me by God, and I feel like my abilities are really His...almost like I need to pay Him by using these abilities to help other people find peace, healing. This is how I view my personal situation.

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by lilbit0jd - 28 Nov 2011 06:03

_____

I meant no offense to non professionals. What would be nice is learning to filter stimuli and to fine tune abilities.

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by Karmastrophic - 28 Nov 2011 06:08

_____

I agree. I don't know what I'm capable of doing, or how to tap into it at will. It just seems to be there when I've really needed it, but I have no clue how it all works. I do truly feel that this is my calling, though, and I would love to somehow find out how to discover my full potential. I have absolutely no clue how to do this, and haven't been able to really trust in my impressions - whether I'm right or if I'm just imagining things or projecting my own thoughts or feelings into a situation.

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?
Posted by Kimber Chase - 28 Nov 2011 06:24

_____

hmmmmmm well good question. I wouldn't begin to know how to instruct someone how to fine tune their abilities since mine have always just been with me and developed as I grew into an adult. Or it could be I just became better at reacting to my experiences. I do think meditation helps a lot though. Like for example... I 100 % know that my husband is burning a hole with his eyes thru my back because I'm on the computer on his birtday.....turns around...YUP I was right haha ;o) night y'all

==========

Re: Other Sensitives out there?

Posted by crystalcross - 28 Nov 2011 15:33

Kimber Chase wrote:

Just out of couriousity do you think a professional medium is more capable of helping someone then a psychic who doesn't use their gifts for fee? Or just more available?

Actually I think being a professional has nothing to do with the ability. I personally relate it a bit to flight training. The more you use it, and practice your gifts the better and more controlled you become at it. The word "Professional" doesn't really fit into that definition. You could just as easily practice in the shadows as you could in the lime-light.

==========