Findidng a team especially localy can be very hard. I recently started one and everyone is spread out in diffrent states so hard to get together for investigations due to travel.

yes it can be I had to travel 2hrs for my first investigation something I don't want to do all the time to break the bank I tell you this though I've lived in 5 different houses I've had experiances in all of them from minor to full body to shadows to things move and hide to doors opening and closing it's been one heck of a ride just wish I can get an unbiest investigation with others around for confirmation

not saying the 2hrs was a killer but I wasn't even part of a group I just went down On my own even traveled back at like 3 in the morning after investigation I just wish I was part of a group so I can have more security in an all nighter and maybe even have some hotel arrangemnts
